Three Weeks = Period of Maximum Fun on the Seattle Waterfront

During the upcoming Alaskan Way Viaduct closure, visitors can enjoy fantastic deals at Seattle's well-loved waterfront businesses

SEATTLE – Jan. 9, 2019 – Don't fret about traffic and congestion until February 3; relax and enjoy the Seattle Waterfront. The Seattle Waterfront Association has created fun for you to come early or stay late into the evening to spend the night with some friendly offers.

Beginning January 11 and through February 3, guests who visit the Seattle Waterfront can enjoy more than a dozen special offers and deals from businesses stretching from Pier 54 to Pier 66.

"Winter is the best time to come to the Seattle Waterfront," said Kevin Clark CEO of Argosy Cruises. "The seals and sea lions are frolicking and sometimes orcas come into Elliott Bay – always a highlight on Argosy's Harbor Cruise. There are 300 covered parking spaces under the viaduct. There are no lines to ride the Great Wheel or visit the sea otters at the Seattle Aquarium. Plus, the FREE Waterfront Shuttle makes it easy to get from the Space Needle down the waterfront to Pioneer Square and King Street station, and a second FREE shuttle runs from Pier 56 to the downtown hotels, Convention Center, and Pike Place Market. And with the viaduct closed, it will be QUIET!"

More details on these offers will be available at <https://www.seattlewaterfront.org/period-of-maximum-fun/> (some restrictions may apply)
